

Mick Harris

Career Overview

Mick Harris is a renewable energy expert. He was a pioneer in the area of renewable energy systems in Victoria in the early 1970s.

Mick Harris has more than 25 years experience in the sustainable technology and energy efficiency field. He is a trained energy auditor in domestic, commercial and industrial sector and has extensive practical experience in the design and installation of renewable energy and energy efficiency systems.

He has a Bachelor of Education in Environmental Science, Graduate Diploma in Business Administration, has written numerous articles, as well as edited magazines and books on sustainability issues.

Mick is a technical specialist for the ATA (Alternative Technology Association), the Managing Director of EnviroGroup and provides technical advice for the New Inventors, (ABC TV).

His achievements include:

- Owner and Managing Director of EnviroGroup and its subsidiary EnviroShop, one of Melbourne’s leading sustainable technology retailers.
- Overseeing and supervising the installation of more than 400 grid connect PV systems in the last 12 months.
- Trained energy auditor in domestic, commercial and industrial sector.
- Bachelor of Education (Environmental Science), Grad. Diploma in Business Admin.
- Founded ReNew magazine and edited first 40 issues.
- He has edited sustainability books and numerous booklets.
- Qualified teacher who has taught at secondary and TAFE level, (Cert 4 in Renewable Energy, Photovoltaics) and in numerous community based courses.
- Director and founder of the ATA’s International Projects Group which has installed more than 40 standalone photovoltaic systems in East Timor.
- Technical specialist for the ATA (Alternative Technology Association).
- Technical advisor for the ABC’s New Inventors show
- Has extensive experience in providing information and educational resources on sustainability.